

THE WEBSITE OF THE DAVIS-MONTHAN AIRFIELD REGISTER, 1925-1936

CODE OF ETHICS

GENERAL

This Web site does not knowingly write, include or exclude, exhibit or imply anything that may be construed as detrimental to any person, company, historical event or figure.

This Web site reports on and analyzes historical information from the early part of the 20th century. Some of this information may conflict with 21st century concepts and perceptions of political correctness regarding gender, race and cultural mores. Information, such as overt sexism and racism in Golden Age news media, or contemporary cultural values around Prohibition or civil rights, are reported factually from the era, with no attempt to sanitize, update or cover for the statements or their consequences.

This Web site does not knowingly violate the copyright, trademark or patent rights of any individual, corporation or other entity. This includes page designs, data-handling, images and texts, and any other design, graphics or textual entities or formats used on this Web site.

This Web site prefers hyperlinks to Web resources as a tactic to present additional information. This is done rather than copying and inserting or otherwise infringing on the creative material of others. Hyperlinks are evaluated for historical and factual accuracy before a link is made from dmairfield.org, but there is no guarantee that the owner of the linked material may not change it from time to time, or eliminate the URL completely. Please see the sections on TEXTS and IMAGES, below, for crediting practices

Please refer to the PRIVACY STATEMENT posted on this Web site for further clarification of our ethics vis a vis use of information that might be collected from or shared with site visitors.

This Web site is not intended for persons under 18 years of age. It does not knowingly solicit or collect any information from or about children, and does not knowingly suggest or otherwise market products or services to minors.

TEXTS

Texts are original compositions by your Webmaster. They are compiled from diverse sources, including but not limited to those cited on the REFERENCES page of the Web site. Where quotations are used, the source is clarified, and the quoted text is set off with quotation marks or with other obvious mechanisms (e.g. indentation or boxes). These brief quotes are used in the spirit of the fair use provision of the Copyright Act for purposes of education, comment, criticism, and historical reporting. Please refer to the statement about hyperlinks in the General section, above.

Texts are placed on the Web in good faith that other visitors to this Web site will not transfer them from this site and use them elsewhere.

Please refer to the OWNERSHIP section, below, for clarification on how to acquire permissions to use texts.

IMAGES

The great majority of photographs, films, documents and publications posted on this site are donated by visitors to the site in the spirit of goodwill and understanding of the contributions made to the science and practice of aviation by the people and airplanes listed in the Register. They are placed on the Web in good faith that other visitors to this Web site will not transfer them from this site and use them elsewhere. Please refer to the OWNERSHIP section, below, for clarification on how to acquire permissions to use images.

Images placed online are not modified in any way (with just a few exceptions in the interest of increasing contrast to better read words or numbers, or enlarging details of particular interest). Images are usually cropped and sized to fit the Web page borders and optimized for download efficiency. None of these changes is meant to detract from the appearance, interest or inherent historical value of the original images as they showed up in their museum folders, storage boxes or emailed copies. Another way of saying this is that no images are "PhotoShopped" to make them anything other than what they originally represented.

Some images on this site are used under the fair use provision of the Copyright Act for purposes of education, comment, criticism, and historical reporting. Sources are explicitly cited and credited whenever possible. Please refer to the statement about hyperlinks in the General section, above.

WORLDWIDE PUBLICATION ATTITUDE & INTENT

Due diligence is practiced to evaluate the accuracy, authenticity and truthfulness of information placed on this Web site for global consumption. However, exhaustive detailing is sacrificed in the spirit of getting sometimes incomplete information online promptly so that site visitors with better knowledge may review, comment and contribute to improve with better facts.

Gaps in knowledge are usually flagged with a hyperlinked request for knowledgeable site visitors to provide further information. All corrections, changes, clarifications and additions offered by site visitors are judged and handled quickly, usually within 24-hours.

Errors or inaccuracies are not knowingly placed online. Respectful comments and corrections from site visitors will be responded to, in-turn, gratefully and respectfully.
